The Tribune commenting on the California election says a majority of legislators elected are opposed to the railroad monopoly, and the probabilities are that the Senator chosen to succeed Casserly will be independent of the great railroad interest that has so long controlled the politics of the State, and made such selfish and tyrannical use of its power The Legislature being of that complexion, George C Gorham's public service will continue in the capacity of Secretary instead of member of the U S Senate.

A CREOLE VENDETTA

A TERRIBLE AFFRAY IN LOUISIANA—THREE MEN KILLED AND TWO WOUNDED

The Opelousas (La.) Journal of the 14th gives the following particulars of the terrible battle at Grand Prairie, St Landry Parish [illegible]

Last Monday morning one of the terrible tragedies which all communities are occasionally liable to occurred at Old Grand Prairie in this parish

Recently there was a Saturday night ball in that neighborhood which was attended by two young men—Drouz Guillory and Felix Soileau—who quarreled It was agreed that the difficulty should be settled by a regular old Creole fist duel, and Monday morning last was fixed upon as the time and the place was Point Meyon a point of woods extending from the Bayou Cocodrie into Old Grand Prairie near Widow Alexandre Fontenot's house two miles from Stagg's store on the right of the road leading from Washington to Ville Platte about three quarters of a mile from Washington and thirteen or fourteen miles from Opelousas

Mr Augustin Guillory an old gentleman between sixty five and seventy but still vigorous and fierce and vindicative, is the father of Benjamin, Cyriaque and Drouz Guillory and father-in-law of Angelas Prudhomme A quarrel of one of the family is the quarrel of all and their feuds are as fierce, and deep and long enduring as were those of the ancient Scotch Highlanders In indictments have been pending against Benjamin and Cyriaque Guillory and Angelas and Louis Prudhomme for the murder of James McDaniel on the 27th of June 1871 These indictments have been pending since October 20 1871 and from that time the parties accused became fugitives from justice Louis Prudhomme was arrested and turned States evidence Angelas Prudhomme was arrested and tried at the last term of our District Court found guilty without capital punishment and sentenced to the penitentiary, where he is now serving out his sentence

Previous to this the two Guillorys Benjamin and Cyriaque had been pursued into Texas on a warrant from here, and arrested They obtained their release there on a writ of habeas corpus, because the warrant of arrest had not been endorsed by the authorities in Texas Three of the persons composing the posse that made the arrest were Aristide Ortego Carroll Blackman and Alexandre Vidrine They reside in the Guillory neighborhood or that section of the parish and two of them were killed at the fight in Old Grand Prairie last Monday morning From the time of the arrest in Texas there have been mortal enmity and never dying hate between the Guillorys and them

When the crowd assembled at Point Meyon last Monday morning all these parties were present except the two Prudhommes—Angelas is in the penitentiary and Louis does not inhabit that section any longer—and Benjamin and Cyriaque Guillory who were and still are refugees Mr Augustin Guillory it seems was one of the seconds and backers of his son in the fight with Soileau, and Carrol Blackman was the friend of Soileau

The account we first gave is from memory and from those who profess to give an impartial one Mr Guillory the old man is very excitable fractious and insulting and always quick to grab his pistol Before the first fight he tried to pick a quarrel with Blackman by calling him hard names and using insulting language to him generally Some of them coaxed him a little and asked him not to get up a row until the fist fight was over when there would be an open field for all who were inclined to fight The fist-fight began and Soileau soon cried enough because it is said Mr Guillory the old man came too near nervously handling his pistol Soileau expected to be shot and as [illegible] was shot at by Guillory and was grazed but not seriously hurt

Then a difficulty began between Guillory pere and Carroll Blackman Guillory approached him with his pistol and began dusting him and made use of language that Blackman told him he must take back and that he must not draw his pistol One of Blackman's friends jumped between them and seized Blackman around the arms and endeavored to push or pull him away while Blackman endeavored to free himself from his grasp, holding his pistol in his hand Drouz Guillory had also got in front of his father

While Blackman's friend was holding him and pulled him about half round Guillory, pere, pushed up and put his pistol just under Blackman's shoulder blade and fired The ball passed across under both shoulders to the other side Blackman fell in his tracks, and everybody sprung out of his way Blackman died in about five minutes but a Guillory ran off he fired at him but shot too low being too weak to hold up his pistol He propped it up then on the other hand and fired twice Guillory fell, and it was discovered afterward that he had been shot in three places during the fight—his thigh bone was badly shattered just above the knee [illegible] the breast or [illegible] on one side and ranged diagonally [illegible] the breast on the other side but did not come out Two of the [illegible] are thought to be mortal

In the meantime young Guillory [illegible] his pistol from a young man named Pruett an employe of the family [illegible] in the crowd and shot Alexandre Vidrine through the breast who fell dead He then snapped a couple of caps at the head of Blackman who was down dying, and when Ortego remonstrated with him for trying to shoot a dying man he turned on Ortego and snapped two caps at him [illegible] he was [illegible] the third time Ortego [illegible] remark [illegible] Your [illegible] snaps but here comes one that never snaps

With this he fired at Guillory the ball passing through his stomach or chest Guillory dropped his pistol and asked him not to shoot any more that he [illegible] to run [illegible] but when [illegible] distant he [illegible] When the shooting began the crowd [illegible] 100 or 12[illegible] persons present [illegible] [illegible] were personally interested in the [illegible] wounded

The Opelousas [illegible] of the 16th gives the following [illegible]

An inquest was held [illegible] bodies of those [illegible] that Augustin Guillory [illegible] Carroll Blackman [illegible] Alexandre Vidrine [illegible]

The lead was [illegible] next [illegible]

Of the three persons killed [illegible] man was about thirty [illegible] wife and two children [illegible] Alexandre Vidrine was about twenty two [illegible] [illegible]

ALASKA CORRESPONDENCE

[From our Regular Correspondent.]

SITKA Alaska Ter Aug 3 1873

We have had one or two sensations here lately which have created great excitement in this small place The first might very appropriately be called "a tempest in a teapot" and was caused by the appointment of Mr Thompson formerly of Portland as Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue and his consequent posting up of notices of the amounts required for the different licenses to sell tobacco beer and ardent spirits Some growled about the injustice of taxation without representation as the whole Territory has no Representative in Congress and not even any form of civil government but is treated as an Indian reservation with the commanding officer of this post as Indian Agent others about the inconsistency of the Custom House and military regulations as well as of that between the latter and those of the Internal Revenue, the [illegible] prohibiting the manufacture of ardent spirits by a very high tax, but allowing them to be sold under a license, while the military prevents their sale under any circumstances The Custom House allows none to be brought in without paying a duty and provides that those seized in the act of being smuggled shall be confiscated, sold at auction and the proceeds divided in certain proportions between the United States Government and the Revenue officers as also that a heavy fine shall be imposed upon those attempting their introduction. The military threatens as the least punishment that the liquor shall be destroyed immediately upon its sale

The principal dissatisfaction exists in regard to the sale of leaf tobacco and the duty thereon The required license is $500 per year while the profits of all the dealers, or even possibly the gross receipts of all, might not amount to this sum. And yet it is almost a necessity in their traffic with the Indians, and the consequence of its not being sold would be the diversion of a great part of the Indian trade to Fort Simpson in the British Possessions where already blankets and ready-made clothing are a great deal cheaper But there is no evil in this world without its remedy, and I don't doubt one will soon be found for this

The second great sensation has been the arrival of the U S S Saranac, the flag ship of Rear Admiral Pennock, of the North Pacific Squadron, with a crew of two hundred and forty men exclusive of the officers. She came to anchor in the inner harbor about three o'clock on the afternoon of Saturday, Aug 2d The stewards of the officers' mess were about the only persons who came ashore that evening The demand for fresh vegetables was very great, followed almost immediately by a rise in price of some one hundred per cent At about 12 o'clock this morning the Admiral and staff landed and were saluted by the firing of thirteen guns in their honor. In the afternoon about one hundred sailors were granted liberty, and then it was that the beer saloon-keepers made money. Until [illegible] seven in the evening the town put on quite a lively appearance, and certainly there was more excitement, and it looked more as if a Fourth of July celebration were going on than it did on the actual anniversary of the national independence

August 4, 1873.

This morning at 9 o'clock a salute of 13 guns was fired from the flag-ship in return for that of the army the day before, and shortly after a coaling party was sent ashore towed by the steam launch The Navy Department has several hundred tons of coal in an old barge which has been roofed over and has a remarkably strong resemblance to a child's Noah's Ark on a large scale, and for the rent of this they have been paying $50 a month, and also $50 per month to a citizen of this place for looking after it and seeing that none of it is stolen As the coal can only be taken out at high tide the labor of removing it will be very slow

We were amused this morning at seeing three canoes filled with Indians, the central one having two masts and the others only one The Admiral's canoe was decorated, from stem to stern, with a United States flag above which was a streamer and three rows of flags, mostly of a yellow color, the rest being white, in rows from mast to mast, and from mast to bowsprit, in very good imitation of either signals, flying and drying, or of the usual appearance of a large ship on sailors' washing day There were several squaws on board who with the men kept up a continual chorus and gave us plenty of vocal music They seemed like a crowd of happy children enjoying their holiday and yet reverse the picture and put weapons in their hands and they make quite formidable adversaries, especially where they greatly outnumber the whites

August 17, 1873.

The labor of coaling ship on board the Saranac was completed about the middle of last week, and since then the lighters have been engaged in carrying the coal remaining in "the ark" to one of the islands, where a shed has been erected for its protection The ship is expected to leave this evening, or possibly to-morrow The Admiral lately gave a reception to the officers of this post. The vessel was beautifully decorated with flags of all nations, colors and bunting, and music from a fine band, and dancing added to the other festivities of the occasion, made the time pass most delightfully The next day the officers of the ship gave a grand party, which went off very successfully Two boat races caused a high degree of excitement both afloat and ashore. The first was between the Indians under the leadership of Sitka Jack, the steam launch, and one of the cutters manned by a volunteer crew no two of whom had probably ever pulled together the whole being a very impromptu affair The distance was a mile to the stove-boat and return The launch was to carry only forty pounds of steam, her gauge allowing eighty All hands set to with a will, the Indians whooping and calling in order to excite each other to greater exertions and thus greatly increasing the enjoyment of the spectators. The launch won easily, but the cutter gave the canoe a very tight race the Indians time being 19 minutes and the boat's 19 30 There were twenty paddles against twelve oars The other race was between the Indians themselves from the wharf around the ship and return There were two entries a larger and a smaller canoe The latter had the inside and abreast of the Saranac made two very sharp turns, thus gaining several lengths but going back the other being between them and the wharf, although a little astern had the inside and thereby won the race by a few feet but the umpire decided that it was a drawn battle, thereupon the stakes were equally divided and beer served out to the red skins who expressed entire satisfaction After several days of rain and cloudy weather the sun has consented to shine and warm cheer and enlighten Sitka and its inhabitants with its genial rays That it may show us the light of its countenance more frequently is the fervent wish of

THE PEOPLE AND THEIR INSTRUCTORS.

When in 1856 and again in 1866 the Congress of the United States passed an act increasing the salaries of Congressmen no one was heard to condemn it. No platform denounced it, no censor of the press demanded atonement. Yet in both these instances the increase of salary was retroactive and essentially wrong. In 1873 the same thing was repeated. Then there arose a unanimous note of condemnation that thundered in the ears of offenders and made them hasten to propitiate outraged public feeling. What occasioned this universal change of the national heart? for it was nothing less. The moral quality of the act was just the same in 1865 as it was in 1873.

In casting about for some theory on which to explain this phenomenon it will be noticed that in 1873 the secular press was the first to direct popular thought to it. And then, as along the Scottish hills in olden time the red beacon light flamed its warning to the watchful clans until height after height sent forth its ruddy warning of danger, so with inappreciable speed from State to State, from city to hamlet all over the land blazed the indignation of an affronted people. A new enthusiasm inspired the people and their instructors. It was not the first substantial token to wrong doers that the American people would not quietly suffer a degradation of their good name, but it came with such a spontaneity, and was withal so unstudied that it surpassed any previous demonstration of the kind. Then it first appeared that while knaves and charlatans lured by the treacherous calm which always follows an overwhelming partizan victory, were quietly enjoying the fruition of their wicked schemes, there had been going on a transformation so silent, that it would have required the vigilant ear of that fabulous giant who heard the grain of wheat growing, to have detected it. The press shared in this general quickening of the moral sense, and to day there is no more gratifying omen than that both people and press are more vigilant than they ever have been before. We must not omit to mention that, in more ways than one, the people have been teaching their instructors. And now it occurs to us that it would be well if the people shall keep an eye upon the moral tone of their preceptors, while with another they scrutinize the affairs of state. Let them see to it that the journals which have chosen or have been forced to accept the new standard for public service, do not lapse into the old ways. Corrupt politicians and soulless monopolies, appreciating the value and the power of the newspaper have in more instances than one captured these teachers of the people. The work of vitiating public morals, of blunting the keen faculty of discrimination between right and wrong, has become a profession in this day. This is just what the Central Pacific Railroad Company is attempting to do for California. Millions are lavished and some of the best editorial talent of the day is employed in the infamous work. The people of Oregon have an interest in this matter. What one of you would send his child for virtuous instruction to the drunkard or the libertine? Or what one of you could expect wise counsel and just laws from one whose whole life has been steeped in iniquity? "A man is known by the company he keeps," and this is just as true of the newspaper as of the man. "The way of the transgressor is hard" and a rigorous justice wherein consists the only safety for society demands that it should be made hard if by any means it shall seem to have become a path of ease. The people can not afford to condone high crimes and misdemeanors. No more can they afford to suffer their instructors to smooth them over, lest the blind lead the blind and both fall into the ditch. Plainly, a journal which constitutes itself the especial champion of an offender against the law of God and man is an unsafe guide. The criminal may not always escape the penalty of his crime. Retributive justice follows his path with her vast artillery, pouring forth charge after charge of galling rebuke and denunciation. Fortunately she stops not to spare or pity, but rolls on and on upon the track of her perjured and condemned subject, in spite of the obstacles with which he would impede her way. It reminds one of Miltonic images—of that solitary Hand seen in the visions of De Quincey, pursuing through desert spaces and through ancient chaos a rebellious host and overtaking with volleying thunders those who believed themselves already within the security of darkness and of distance. And when he is overtaken in his wrong doing it is worse than the most egregious folly to release him upon his own recognizance without even the poor security that he will not do so again or the still frailer plea that he hasn't repeated the crime while retributive justice was tracking him up. Of the public teacher that would hush the voice of popular condemnation should the betrayer from the just wrath of his victims even seek to justify his crimes by a code of false morals it would be well for all good men to beware. Its protestations of virtue may be loud but its associations are corrupt. Figs can not be gathered of thorns nor grapes of thistles.

At the recent mass meeting of the [illegible] in Boston Amasa Walker expressed himself in unequivocal terms as favorable to the purchase by the General Government of [illegible] railroads in the United States. His [illegible] fers slightly from General Butler's [illegible] in the Framingham address. Mr. Walker said it should be the duty of [illegible] interfere and protect the business of the country. He suggested three ways [illegible] of which he thought [illegible]. First by a general law fixing [illegible] and freights on all roads [illegible] ond to create new lines between the principal depots of transportation. Third by purchasing all the roads and [illegible] government management [illegible] would open all roads [illegible] cheapest rates. He th[illegible] feasible. This latter [illegible] [illegible] their roads to [illegible] individuals whereas the [illegible] would make them [illegible] which any citizen might transport [illegible] conveyances of his own. Mr. Walker appreciates the magnitude of the problem which he said had arisen to the dignity of a national issue that could find its solution in political action [illegible].

Mosby of guerrilla notoriety was seen about the White House on afternoon in early summer. Then we heard that he had [illegible] the way of Longstreet and would [illegible] the administration in the [illegible] Virginia campaign. But Mosby has concluded to confound his accusers by coming out squarely in opposition to the Republican party. A Washington dispatch says that the business [illegible] of that city [illegible] Harlan's [illegible] probably announces that the ex guerrilla has come out in favor of the Conservative ticket [illegible]. This statement of Colonel Mosby's position is true. He has gone back horse, foot and dragoon to the ranks of the Democracy. We make this explanation thus positively because we know whereof we speak, and add to it that Mosby stands to-day in default regarding certain promises made by him when he was seeking appointments for his personal friends on the ground as he himself stated that he wished to prepare the State for a successful campaign by the Republican party.

A new and dangerous issue has entered into the Virginia campaign. An effort has been made to win the white voting element to the support of the Conservative ticket by circulating a report that the colored men of the District of Columbia are organizing to put down the whites. The Washington Chronicle (Harlan's) avers that the authority of Republican journals is quoted and made the text of frantic appeals to the voters of Virginia to join with the Conservatives and put down the "Black Man's Party." The Chronicle pronounces the story that the negroes and Radicals are banding together for any such purpose false. This calls out the Republican with a vigorous defense of its allegation. It maintains the truthfulness of its story. The Chronicle, in reply, says that "it is a very silly story" and that "it is [illegible] a very disastrous effect on the campaign."

LETTER FROM TACOMA.

[From our Occasional Correspondent.]

TACOMA, Sept 1st 1873.

A visit to the Company's town site will give any doubter assurance that the Company mean business. They have a force of about forty men at work grading the road from the wharf to the plateau on which the business part of the town is expected to be built. The ascent will be very easy being only about five feet to the hundred. There are about one hundred men at work on the town site in cutting down, boring and burning timber and digging out stumps. Work on the Company's wharf will be commenced in a few days, the piles being already on the ground and the pile-driver is expected here to-morrow. The Company, I understand, will commence selling lots in about two weeks, when a great deal of activity in building is expected.

Building at the old town is still progressing. A large wharf has been commenced and several dwellings and stores being in progress of construction.

There are no vessels in port at present, but their are four on the way to load with lumber at the Tacoma mill. There is about one million feet of lumber on the Company's wharf awaiting shipment.

The graders are within two miles of the bay and within two or three weeks the entire road will be ready for the iron which is now on the way from the East by railroad to San Francisco, whence it will be brought to Kalama by steamers.

I. M. Starr accompanied Messrs. Lace and Ainsworth to New York to attend a meeting of the Board of Directors with a view of selling his line of steamers to the Company. It is reported that a line of steamers will be put on between this place and San Francisco as soon as the road is completed from Kalama here.

The tent reading room which has done good service is to be taken down and a substantial frame building is to be erected in its place. Rev. Mr. Atkinson of Portland the originator of the idea of opening a place where the public could obtain without cost access to papers, magazines and writing materials is deserving of great praise for the successful manner in which he has carried it out and the appreciation of the institution is shown by the construction at so early a day, of a permanent building. There are so many men here living temporarily in rough uncomfortable houses that such a place is necessary to keep them from the comforts and conveniences of the saloons which abound here and which are the only other public places of resort. The favorite papers I notice are the OREGONIAN and Bulletin and if you want a paper either you have got to wait and watch and then you have got to be active or some other fellow has got ahead of you. If any of your readers have a surplus of books or magazines they can do better with them than to send them to the Free Reading Room. The building is to be used on Sundays for religious services.

We are going to have a circus here next week if we can get a large enough space clear of stumps for them to put their tent on.

We have had another murder, which makes two within two weeks both committed at what is most appropriately called the "Mud House." This time it is an Indian killed by a white man, cause—whisky. The house is kept by one Pennell who is also the proprietor of the notorious house of the same character at Seattle. As your readers may not have heard of it I will say that it is a kind of "hurdy gurdy" or dance house where all the females are squaws—nice institution and we have got to stand it.

We see a great many Portlanders here. Some simply land on the mill wharf, look up at the bluff on which the mill buildings are located and go away disgusted, while those who spend a day with us and prospect around are invariably delighted with the location and the city and pronounce it to be what it really is, the finest townsite on the coast.

LATER—Since I murdered the Indian as above I find that he wasn't murdered but only very badly beaten and that had he been an Indian he would have no doubt have been dead before this.

The Masons hold a meeting this evening for the purpose of organizing a lodge.

The Chinamen at work [illegible] struck for higher wages [illegible] that the Company did not want them [illegible] at any higher figures [illegible] at the same wages. [illegible]

Feeling [illegible] I doubt not, with [illegible] who have examined the [illegible] of the proposed series [illegible] their [illegible] sustain the action of the Superintendent, and whatever their [illegible] of this [illegible] Mr Simpson [illegible] one else has favored the public with the explanation to which they are justly entitled.

I presume there is no question as to the intention of the powers that be to adopt the [illegible] Coast Series, [illegible] this can be done with a showing of justice to the interest of this State, every inhabitant of which, large or small, is seriously concerned in the conclusion at which they shall arrive. Now what with the [illegible] by sectional pride and a laudable willingness and wish to patronize the products of Pacific coast brain and manufactories we are all willing no doubt to give the preference to this series—other circumstances being equal. But after a careful perusal of the first two of the series—all that have been issued as I understand—I am convinced that no practical live teacher who has kept pace with the times can pronounce them successes. The author claims for them that the matter of which they are composed is new and I verily believe it is. But what an argument! Anything is new to a child, and all educators know how essential it is that the first books children read should contain such matter as will give their budding ideas the proper bent and conduce to the formation of proper habits of mind. Innovation is not reform. Euclid has not been more an absolute standard in geometry for two thousand years than many of the old stories have been in youthful literature. Esop's fables were not newer to the youthful Cæsar or Cicero than they are to Young America to-day. The fact that the matter is all new is a powerful argument against the probability of these books reaching a standard of efficiency that would entitle them to any consideration, and no one will fail to see that it would be very unsafe to exchange the certainty of the good things culled from the school books of fifty generations past for the present chance of getting a whole book of new matter equally good.

These books contain but little of absolute merit. Good mechanical execution is about all we can credit them with. They contain more that is absolutely bad. The author seems to have imbibed the mistake common to many who have not perhaps made teaching a study, that the narration of a dog fight or a story of cruelty has no effect upon a young child except to give him some present gratification or harmless amusement. His idea seems to be that a child's mind will not get a permanent bent at this early age, and this is in keeping with the idea so prevalent and erroneous that any teacher whom the children like will do to instruct the a, b, c darians. The best teacher should teach the little folks, else experience has taught me wrong, but practically this is impossible owing to insufficiency of good teachers. We can, at least, mitigate the evil by bestowing the utmost possible care upon the preparation of their first books. The San Francisco Board of Education struck the key note not long since, when they decided that no teacher should have charge of the children during the first two years of their school life unless he or she have been a successful teacher for four years. This action is the offspring of an idea that one would be led to suppose never occurred to the author of these books.

Again for one I am opposed to the introduction of the Bible into the public schools under the usual conditions, but when I find two consecutive school readers which contain but one allusion—even the remotest—to the Deity in any form as is the case here I think I may be pardoned for suggesting that this is setting at defiance the most cherished belief of quite too large a portion of the citizens whose patronage the author aims to secure.

I am not personally acquainted with either of the compilers of this series, but I am credibly informed that one of them is a practicing physician at Eugene and all Oregonians know the other to be a poet and an author of great promise. I am also informed that neither of these gentlemen has ever made teaching a business. Now Mr Editor I submit whether it is not as reasonable to set a physician to writing poetry or a poet to ship building as it is to set either of them to the work of compiling a set of school books to be forced upon the citizens of a whole State at an enormous cost and without even a chance of previous knowledge of them. To put it that in order to compile a school book that would have a fair chance of being successful a man must have an amount of talent for the business equal to that of either of these gentlemen and a long and successful experience as a teacher besides.

This question is a vital one and concerns us all. Let us hope the subject will cause enough discussion to convince the State Board that the people are sufficiently alive to a sense of their own interest to hold the Board to a grave account. [illegible] Surely they will not let notions of sectional pride or notions of personal friendship lead them to make a selection which would be an incubus upon the educational interests of the State for the next four years and which owing to the vast amount of capital invested would become a total loss in the event of a change could hardly be shaken off even then. SATURDAY MORNING, SEPT. 6, 1873.

CITY.

THE PROGRESS CLUB.—We had occasion a days ago to mention this Club. Yesterday, through the courtesy of a member we were shown the new addition to the present large area occupied by this popular institution. The new rooms occupy the entire upper floor of Wiberg's new brick building, to which a large entrance has been made by cutting through the wall. The addition will be divided into a dining room of sufficient dimensions to seat 200 persons at two long tables, adjoining which is a pantry and store room. The object of this dining room is to afford those participating in the semi-monthly receptions an opportunity to attend to the wants of the "inner man," thus preventing the necessity of leaving the building for that purpose. In addition to those mentioned are two card rooms, which, when completed, will take the place of those in the main building, the vacated rooms being thereafter devoted to other purposes. The plasterers will soon complete their labors on these improvements, and the painters and the upholsterers will follow in their wake. It is expected the new rooms will be ready for occupancy within two weeks. The ball-room floor is now undergoing a thorough planing and polishing preparatory to the opening reception, in all probability, about the 28th inst. The ladies look forward to the occasion with anxiety, and they are joined in their expectancy by many gentlemen. We have no doubt the hall will be crowded on the reception night. At present, this room is used by the Amateur Musical Society, of which Mr. S. Harris is leader, one evening of each week. We observed some two hundred and fifty autographs in the visitors' register, indicating that the members are a social set of gentlemen and will do their utmost to afford pleasure to their local friends as well as acquaintances from abroad. In a few days we shall have occasion to refer again to the progressiveness of the Progress Club.

ANNUAL SURVEY.—Mr. S. O. L. Potter, of the United States Corps of Engineers, went down the river a few days since to the mouth of the Columbia river. The object of his visit is to make the annual survey of the shore line along Sand Island and the western side of Point Adams. Every year a survey of the shore lines at those points is ordered, so as to enable the Government to determine the extent of the washings and the encroachment made by the action of the water on the land. Very perceptible changes in the appearance of the opposite shores at the points above indicated have taken place within the last few years. Especially noticeable are the encroachments of the sea on the western shore of Point Adams. Twelve months's action has produced a decided alteration in the general contour of the shore line. Nearly or quite 200 feet of the shore has been washed away. So constant and rapid are the advances of the sea, that unless some obstacle is constructed by the Government to stay the progress of the water and prevent further disintegration, there is a remote danger that the entire point will be swept away, including Fort Stevens. Some action will doubtless be taken ere long by the Government in this direction, should the water continue its ravages against the land. Along the western shore the water and winds constantly tend. This action sets immense quantities of drift, which is carried to sea by the high tides, toward the shore. Such drift consists of large logs, trees, etc., which are thrown with great force against the shore, thus loosening and detaching immense quantities of the sand which is at once swept out to sea. In a short time Mr. Potter will return, and the result of his labors will be known.

BARK PRIVATEER.—Among the many vessels which have visited port this season, none are more handsome, staunch or trimly built than the bark Privateer, which arrived here a few days since. This vessel is under command of Capt. Cox. She was built in 1872 at St. Johns, New Brunswick. Her dimensions are: Length, 165 feet; beam, 33.5; hold, 20.5 feet. Registered tonnage, 875 tons; carrying capacity, 1,200 tons. The Privateer is built of wood, and constructed in the most powerful manner. With careful sailing, she bids fair to laugh defiantly at the storms and ride safely over the billows for many years to come. In every essential sailing quality, this bark is as good as when she first touched the water, the present being only the second voyage. Soon after being finished, the Privateer sailed from St. Johns to Dublin. Arriving there, she brought a cargo to New York. At the latter port a cargo of coal was taken on board and the bark sailed for Acapulco. Eighty days' sailing brought the Privateer off Cape Horn. Rounding the Cape, the vessel arrived at her destination in forty days, thus completing the voyage from New York in 130 days. Discharging her coal, she sailed from Acapulco for Portland in sand ballast. She is consigned to the firm of Messrs. Rosenfeld, Meyer & Co., and will probably carry to Queenstown a load of grain. At present the Privateer is lying alongside Flanders' wharf. To-day the stevedores will begin to heave the sand out on the wharf.

HELD TO ANSWER.—Yesterday morning, in the Police Court, Mary Ann McGee, Julia Bird and Lizzie Price were arraigned on the charge of a German named J. Ohlschlager, who accused them of robbing him of $100. It appeared on the evidence that the complaining witness entered the den on Second street known as the Ivy Green Saloon. Being wholly unsophisticated in the ways of the "strange woman," our Teutonic friend went in with $100 and came out without a cent. It was the same old story. He demanded of the dusky syren his money, but she informed him that he had spent all his money in treating with wine. This explanation did not satisfy Ohlschlager, and he returned with a warrant and an officer. Three of the women were arrested and examined before the Police Court. The Court, after an examination, held one of the defendants, Julia Bird, to answer the charge in the sum of $500. The bail being given, the defendant was discharged.

PARALYZED.—Mr. Leon Ach, a well known resident of this city, was struck with a paralytic stroke on Wednesday evening. He was measuring off some cloth when he was observed to suddenly drop the cloth and stand like a statue. Mr. Rosenheim, who was in the store at the time, observed the strange action of Mr. Ach, and addressed him. But he received no response, and on coming nearer to him, Mr. Rosenheim discovered that he was speechless. Mr. Ach was soon removed to his residence where he is at present. The stroke effected the right side. He is unable to move either hand or foot, or even speak. His condition is very critical. Mr. Ach is an old and well respected citizen of the place, and he has the sincere sympathies of the public in this very afflictive event.

BRITISH BENEVOLENT SOCIETY.—This Society held an interesting and profitable meeting on last Wednesday evening. Six new members were added to the number already attached to the Society. Mr. Edwin Russell was elected President of the Society, in place of John Wilson, who resigned some time ago just prior to his departure for Liverpool. This Society is officered as follows: President, Edwin Russell; Vice President, D. McCleay; Secretary, Chas. Lancaster; Treasurer, W. W. Francis. At no time in the history of this Society since its organization in Portland has it been in a more prosperous condition than at the present.

FOR SAN QUENTIN.—On last Thursday, Marshal E. S. Kearney, of Washington Territory, arrived in this city, having in custody two prisoners who were convicted at the late term of the Territorial District Court. These prisoners were convicted of the crime of attempting to rob, and sentenced to respective terms of confinement of three years and five months. Yesterday these persons were placed on board the John L. Stephens by the Marshal and sent to San Quentin, California, where they will serve out the terms for which they have been sentenced.

CONTRACT LET.—Mr. I. P. W. Quimby let the contract yesterday for the erection of a new brick building at the corner of Taylor and First streets, on the ground formerly occupied by the grocery store of Mr. Farnsworth. This building will be two stories high, besides a basement. The basement will be 6 feet and a half in the clear. The stories—first and second—will be 16 feet in the clear, and the building is to be 50x80 feet. Mr. E. J. Jeffrey is the contractor. Work will be commenced at once. Brick will be hauled on the ground in a short time, and excavation will be begun without delay.

OFFICERS ELECTED.—Canby and Baker Posts having consolidated, an election of officers was held on Thursday evening, at which the following officers were elected: Post Commander, J. H. Woodward; Senior Vice Commander, Theodore Baker; Junior Vice Commander, G. W. Johnson; Quartermaster, L. P. Ford; Quartermaster Sergeant, A. W. Powers; Sergeant Major, August Cobard; Officer of the Day, George C. Sears; Officer of the Guard, C. May; Surgeon, — Smith; Chaplain, W. C. Hitchcock; Sentinel, C. A. DuBois; Post Adjutant, E. W. Ryan.

A FALL—RUNAWAY.—Yesterday afternoon, while a carpenter was doing some carpenter work for Mr. Walter Moffett, he fell from a ladder, causing the demolition of a number of window panes. The unexpected event caused a horse attached to a buggy to take fright, and said horse vacated the spot in haste, making a trip in various directions. At the termination of his frolicsome freak, the vehicle was found to be in a bad condition. The most practical carriage maker can't make anything of it. Luckily, there was no one in the buggy at the time.

DELAYED.—The steamer John L. Stephens, which was to have sailed yesterday morning at 6 o'clock, was unable to depart at that hour. Early in the morning a heavy and almost impenetrable fog hung over the bosom of the river, rendering objects, a short distance away, very indistinct. Under the circumstances, it was deemed unadvisable to proceed down the river. The steamer was delayed until 1 o'clock, when she sailed away with a full freight and a number of passengers.

DAYLIGHT EXCURSION.—An excursion will be given to the Cascades to-day on the splendid steamer Oneonta. The steamer will leave Portland this morning at 7 o'clock sharp, and will return at 6 P. M. The Twenty-first Infantry Band will accompany the excursion. The proceeds will be applied to the building fund of St. Luke's Church, Vancouver. A general invitation is extended. Tickets for the round trip, $2.

PROTECTIVE ALLIANCE.—The People's Protective Alliance of Portland met at their hall last evening at the usual hour, for the purpose of making arrangements for a grand demonstration to be given in the city at an early day. Papers, etc., have been forwarded to Washington Territory, where societies will be formed to work in unison with those already established in this State.

NEW MASTS.—From both the barks Otago and Privateer, the top-gallant-masts have been taken down, in consequence of the timber being strained during heavy gales, which were encountered while these vessels were on the way to this port. New timbers are being fashioned, and will be elevated to the proper positions soon and firmly bolted.

DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL.

Chas. Vivian is giving entertainments in Southern California.

Joe Murphy continues at Shiel's Opera House, San Francisco.

Lew Parker, the comedian, was in Omaha last month—bound Eastward.

Mlle. Forrestelle, the contortionist, was at Golden City, Colorado, on the 25th ult.

S. W. Piercy and Mr. and Mrs. E. Lipsia, with the "New Magdalen" troupe, were at Los Angeles, Cal., on the 2d inst.

Madame Agnes Stevenson is travelling along the Sound; likewise Wilson's Circus and Mr. E. D. Towl, of Salem, with Reed's Panorama.

Madame Anna Bishop and troupe sailed on the John L. Stephens yesterday for San Francisco, where they will remain until the 15th inst., when they will visit Sacramento, and give concerts during the State Fair.

SPECIAL CHURCH NOTICES.

There will be no service nor Sunday School in the Unitarian Church to-morrow, repairs not being completed.

The Rev. H. Gaus will preach in the German language to-morrow at 9:30 A. M. in the vestry of the Presbyterian Church, corner of Third and Washington streets.

Rev. J. D. Eaton having returned to the city public worship will be resumed at the First Congregational Church to-morrow morning at 11 o'clock. Communion service in the evening at 7:30 o'clock.

The Rev. P. E. Hyland will officiate at St. David's, East Portland, on Sunday morning and evening. Service at the Episcopal Mission Chapel, Sunday evening at 7:30. The opening of the Sunday School at this Chapel will be deferred for a few weeks.

The seats are free at the First Baptist Church, corner of Fourth and Alder street, and strangers are always welcomed with the regular congregation. To-morrow night the Pastor will present the following subject: "God's purposes, never hindered or defeated by the bluster of unbelief."

OUT DOOR SPORTS.

A base ball game between fat and thin nines is talked of. We want to see that game.

The fact that several base-ballist go duck hunting to-day, precludes the possibility of any matches being played to-day.

The Eastern championship on the 27th ult. stood in the following order: Philadelphia, Baltimore, Athletic, Boston, Mutual, Atlantic. Ninety games are to be played by these Clubs by November 1st.

Of the new Chicago Club for 1874, Treacy, Wood, Pinkham, Cuthbert and Meyerle, of the old Club of 1870, and Force, Zettlein, Malone, Glenn and Devlin, of other professional Clubs, have signed articles to play for one season.

A new picked nine is talked of. Of course their object is to give the Pioneer boys a tussle. The latter Club have got away with nearly every Club that tested their strength with them this year. The final game with the College Club will, if it ever takes place, be the game of the season.

PERSONAL.

Judge Sawyer will leave San Francisco this morning on the steamer for Portland. He comes to preside at the regular term of the U. S. Circuit Court, in conjunction with Judge M. P. Deady.

Among the passengers who departed on the Stephens yesterday, was the Hon. Benj. Stark. He is accompanied by his son. Mr. Stark returns to his home in New London, Connecticut after a brief visit to this city.

We were favored last evening with a call from Capt. A. W. Waters, of La Grande, and Hiram Smith, Esq., of Harrisburg. The former gentleman is a delegate from Union county to the Republican State Convention.

AMUSEMENTS.

This evening Oro Fino Theater will be reopened for a brief season. The sensational drama of "Pigeon, the Torment," will be offered for the first time. Mr. Fulford will assume the role of Asa Graham, and Mrs. Fulford that of Pigeon. The bill will be quite attractive, and well worthy of patronage. One of the most pleasing features of the performance will be the Skipping Rope Dance, incident to the drama, which will be performed by Miss Harrietta, the celebrated danseuse. In the rendition of the drama Mr. and Mrs. Fulford will be supported by a number of well know artistes.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

A most liberal advertiser is Martin, and per consequence he is liberally patronized. See what he has to say this morning in the advertising columns.

You couldn't buy below cost, but every person should be satisfied to get boots and shoes at cost. That is exactly what they are doing at the opposition store. Selling for cash enables them to do so.

AN ARTICLE OF TRUE MERIT.—"Brown's Bronchial Troches" are the most popular article in this country or Europe for Throat Diseases and Coughs and this popularity is based upon real merit.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

Excursion to-day.

Smoky weather again.

The oyster season has set in.

Oriflamme will sail for this port this morning.

People are beginning to talk about going to the State Fair.

The new dredger is working at the mouth of the Willamette.

Caulkers are making their hammers ring on the hull of the Otago.

"Pigeon, or the Torment," this evening at the Oro Fino Theater.

The Gov. Grover came down the river yesterday with a full freight.

The Mary Bell is lying at the O. S. N. Co's wharf, undergoing repairs.

The concert troupe were indebted to Mr. De Prans in a great measure for their success.

During August only eight marriage licenses have been issued from the County Clerk's office.

Mr. Holland will go to the Dalles next week to superintend the overhauling of the steamer Idaho.

The train, which came down yesterday from the south, brought three passenger coaches instead of two.

Among the letters held for postage at San Francisco, September 1st, was one addressed "Mrs. Col. Ev. Sumner."

Mr. Jones informs us that he lost $4,500 by the fire which destroyed the sawmill south of the city last Saturday night.

Several persons will commence to make out the three copies of the assessment rolls for Multnomah, on Monday morning.

The Dixie Thompson and Fannie Troup are still at the boneyard undergoing repairs. Both will be out next week and ready for service.

Mike Raney for assaulting an officer with a weapon on Thursday evening, was held to answer the charge in the Police Court yesterday morning.

The steamer Josie McNear will probably be put on the Astoria-Portland route temporarily and one of the large steamers used for lightering purposes during the rush of the grain season.

Mr. G. W. Warren has been in the city for some days completing arrangements for the sale of oysters from the beds of the Shoal Water Bay, Netarts and Eastern Oyster Company.

The steamer John L. Stephens was lying a short distance above the mouth of the Wallamet, as the Astoria boat came up the river yesterday evening. She was unable to cross the bar on account of the low water.

THE COURTS.

COUNTY COURT—HAMILTON, J.

FRIDAY, Sept. 5, 1873.

Congregation Beth Israel vs. John DeBorst—action brought on account. Jury trial; cause pending.

TO THE PUBLIC.

We are now getting on the way a new and fresh stock of fine furniture, which will be superior in quality and newer in design than the one destroyed by the fire, and which we will offer for sale on advantageous terms. Meanwhile, we are well prepared to supply the present demand from our temporary location, corner of Fifth and Taylor streets, near the U. S. Custom House. Respectfully,

HURGREN & SHINDLER.

THE TERRITORIES.

Tacoma is coming on well. A fine specimen of a street brawl or drunken row occurred a few days ago.

The winter term of the Territorial University at Seattle, will open on the 15th inst., under the charge of Prof. E. K. Hill.

The Chinese employed by the Railroad Company at Tacoma; struck for higher wages and were told to "git." The concluded to "git" back to work.

A proclamation has been issued by Governor Ferry, we learn from the Olympia Courier, calling an election in the counties of Jefferson and Kitsap, for a Joint Representative from that District, in place of Luther L. Moore, who has removed from the Territory.

The Olympia Courier of the 4th inst. says: "In the Grand Lodge of Masons yesterday afternoon, little was done except the appointment of the various committees for the session. This morning the Grand Master submitted his annual address, which discussed at considerable length matters of local and foreign interest to the Order, and was referred to a select committee for seggregation and assignment to appropriate committees. The Committee on Foreign Correspondence, and the Grand Secretary also submitted reports. T. McF. Patton, Esq., Grand Master of Oregon, was received and welcomed in a neat and appropriate address by the Grand Master; which was happily responded to by the distinguished visitor."

No man should be without a good suit of clothing while BECK & WALDMAN are offering goods at remarkably low prices. You will be astonished when you take a look at their stock which has been and is being increased to such an extent that more space must be had to give place to the new arrivals. Don't wait, but improve the opportunity to invest at the present time. You will never regret your purchases of Beck & Waldman, S. W. cor. of Washington and Front streets.

MEDICAL SCIENCE never gave the world a nobler boon than when one of its men of genius gave us DR. WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY. Consumption, Coughs, Colds and Bronchitis can be cured. Take it in time, and you will not regret it.

HOTTENTOTS GATHERING BUCHU for Helmbold's Extract has become almost a historical picture. The great composition of Dr. Helmbold's Buchu attests the important fact that thousands upon thousands need a diuretic medicine. For Dropsy, Gravel, Kidney Complaint, and all diseases of the urinary organs, either in male or female, there has never been a remedy equal to Helmbold's Buchu. Its imitators are mere trash. Helmbold's is the old reliable standard remedy.

We pledge our reputation on the assertion that any educated physician, after a careful examination of the recipe, will say that Parsons' Purgative Pills possess more merit than any other pill now offered for sale.

Edward Bayer, Esq., Horton, Kings Co., N. S. writes that an astonishing cure has been effected on his daughter by the use of Johnson's Anodyne Liniment. The whole spine became diseased, she lost the use of her limbs, and her back was rounded up like a bow, in consequence of having taken cold after having been inoculated for the kine pock. She is now well.

The Symptoms of Health.

Health has its symptoms as well as disease. The clear eye, the fresh complexion, the steady hand, the firm step, the unclouded brain, briskness of spirits, and a disposition to look on the bright side of anything, are indications that the animal machinery is in perfect working order. Happy are they whose running gear of life is in this excellent running condition, and fortunate, too, are they who know how to bring it into such a condition if disarranged. All who have experienced or witnessed the effect of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters upon the broken down, desponding victims of dyspepsia, liver complaint, fever and ague, rheumatism, nervous debility, or premature decay, know that in this supreme tonic and alterative there exists a specific principle which reaches the very source of the trouble, and effects an absolute and permanent cure. E Pluribus Unum might be aptly inscribed on the label, for the preparation is a plurality of remedies condensed into one irresistible antidote.

OUR PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

OFFICE OF SUPERINTENDENT PUBLIC SCHOOLS,)
MULTNOMAH COUNTY
PORTLAND, Oregon, Sept. 4, 1873.)

To the Directors and Voters of School Districts in Multnomah County: In compliance with the law, you are herewith respectfully notified that the following books for the use of the schools have been duly chosen, and are reported to me officially by the Hon State Superintendent of Instruction, as the authorized text books for the next four years:

The list does not include Readers and Spellers. These are to be made known to you on or before October 1st.

I am authorized by the Superintendent of Instruction to state:

1. That all schools and school children are expected to furnish themselves with the books named below, for the studies designated, by October 1st, 1873.

2. That as the letter of the law may involve hardship in some cases, and the spirit of the law contemplates an interval of several months from the time of announcement of text books to time of full legal enforcement, Districts will be allowed until March 1st, 1874, to complete the introduction of the authorized series.

3. That no District (except such as may not have had school in the meantime) which fails to report at the close of this school year, the complete introduction of the authorized text books (in such studies as are pursued by their scholars) will be permitted to draw public money for the year following. After March 1st, 1874, the use of these books will be required in all public schools.

I would respectfully request the officers and friends of the schools to further to the extent of their ability, the early introduction of the books named. It will be as easily done at once, in most cases, as deferred.

The various booksellers will, it is hoped, be enabled to furnish many if not all of the books at what are known as introduction prices for at least three months. Careful inquiry should be made before purchasing. I would advise each district to ascertain the number and kind of books needed, and then to have the directors, or some responsible member of the district, negotiate for the entire amount.

COLEMAN'S EUCALYPTUS

Dr. J. S. Coleman's Fluid Extract of Eucalyptus is a preparation containing all the valuable medical qualities of the Eucalyptus, which is cultivated in nearly every ... having become the household remedy for all diseases of the KIDNEYS, BLADDER and URINARY ... IAL, and SEMINAL WEAKNESS. It seems to have a direct affinity for the GENITO-URINARY ORGANS and their surroundings, and cures them by its alterative, healing and balsamic properties more speedily than any other known remedy.

It is an invaluable remedy for all diseases of the mucous and serous membranes, ... BRONCHITIS, HACKING COUGH, NAUSEA DURING PREGNANCY, DYSPEPSIA, LEUCORRHOEA, etc.

This preparation is the result of Dr. Coleman's experiments with the medical properties of the tree in the U. S. Marine Hospital in San Francisco, in 1871 and 1872, where he had unusual facilities for testing the various methods of preparing the remedy, and its uses. It can be relied upon as certain to give the promised results, and hundreds of testimonials of its efficacy can be seen at his office, 605 Kearney street, San Francisco.

COLEMAN'S DOUBLE EXTRACT OF EUCALYPTUS is a powerful, yet harmless, febrifuge, and is a special preparation for the treatment of the malarious fevers of our interior valleys, and is warranted to cure any case of FEVER AND AGUE treated with it according to directions, while the baneful results of the usual Quinine and arsenical remedies of those diseases are entirely avoided.

FOR PHYSICIANS, Coleman's Fluid Extract of Eucalyptus in 1-lb bottles.

EUCALYPTUS. Beware of imitations, and take none but COLEMAN'S. For sale everywhere, and by HODGE, CALEF & CO., Wholesale Druggists, Portland. Sole Agents for Oregon.

SATURDAY MORNING SEPT 6 1873

GRETCHEN

It was about ten o'clock in the evening when the drinkers left the Swan. Theodore followed with the rest, and went down the silent village. All the little windows were being closed and the good housewives might be heard crying in the darkness as they closed their shutters "Good night Gretel! good night Gretel good night!"

Then all became silent and Theodore was left alone in the dark street—gazing, listening, dreaming, whilst the countless stars twinkling overhead and the trees rustled along the road sides.

How many things does night reveal that escape the eye and the ear by day! Hark to that distant murmur. Look at that cat half seen darting along there through the deep shadows. Listen to this bird chirping so softly that the marten on the watch for it can scarcely hear it.

Theodore loved the night. He went a few paces, paused, turned round and listened attentively. He recollected the words of the weaver as he gazed up at the sky. "Keep thine heart with all diligence."

But when he looked once more at the earth, when he inhaled the sweet odors of autumn—the new mown hay, the brown leaves of the trees—then he thought of Gretchen, pretty Gretchen so blooming and fair, with her large eyes of liquid blue, ever lighted with the sweetness of smiles—her bright and merry laugh. How beautiful she then rose in his thoughts and how fast his heart would beat. He could see her tripping from table to table, her arm white as ivory slightly raised as she poured the foaming liquor into the large stone mugs—her finely shaped figure, her two plaits of fair hair hanging down to the edge of her short scarlet petticoat, her teeth shining like white enamel!

Gretchen had smiles for every one except M. Theodore; as soon as he entered she became [illegible] but [illegible] such a tender expression stole over her large blue eyes that the poor lad's heart overflowed with love. His emotion mastered him and he uttered unintelligible words.

Theodore went on dreaming; he could see also old Reebstock, Gretchen's father, in his large gray periwig, with his open good natured countenance, then the smoky tavern with its low [illegible], the clock with its porcelain face, the lamp hung from the ceiling, lighting up all the brown faces of the drinkers and the vine[illegible], half hidden by their [illegible], and glittering, too, on the little pewter mugs in their huge, rough hands.

"There is life upon earth," he said to himself—"life, bright and full of love, joy, and comfort. Wine, delicious fruits, sweet odors, and Gretchen—that is what my life consists of; that is the sum of earthly bliss to me."

He trembled with emotion as he thought of the girl; he saw her so clearly in his mind's eye, that he might have marked every thread in her dress, every bead in her necklace, every change of expression in her rosy, dimpled [illegible].

Gretchen was in every object he saw, in every sound he heard; he looked at the stars, and Gretchen was there; he listened to the wind and there he heard the voice of Gretchen; he thought of the peopled world, and there was Gretchen too. Ever there—listening to his thoughts and answering them. "O Love, Love! What art thou? whence comest thou?"

Thus Theodore went on in the starlight, by the back of the village, skirting the coppice wood, following the little paths edged with railings, and came out at last on the newly-mown meadow. Here he noticed the queer, irregularly-built cottages, with their outside [illegible] and [illegible], their poultry-yards, and their wide and far-projecting roofs. Dark, mysterious shadows brooded over all.

After making a long round, he found himself once more before Reebstock's house. He stopped behind the shed under Gretchen's window, and said to himself, looking at the little round aperture at the top of the shutter,—

"She is there!"

[illegible] he stood, the moon throwing her pale light on his face, defining with a clear outline the hollow of his eyes, silvering his fair beard, and rippling over his negligent yet graceful and picturesque artist's dress. In his left hand he held his large felt hat, with its cock's feathers sweeping the ground, and with his right he sent his heart to Gretchen in a [illegible]. [illegible] in contemplation for a quarter of an hour, he vaulted over the low garden railings, entered the yard, and [illegible] on the right the tap-room door open, the barrel with its full red hoops looming in the darkness, the low bench, the hatchet with its curved handle, gleaming with a bluish light, the plane, the pincers, the cooper's tools, the screw of the wine press, [illegible] by the rays of the moon. He advanced slowly, inhaling the sourish smell of the fermenting hop and grapes.

Not a sound was to be heard; from the skylight above streamed a calm subdued light. He sat down on a barrel and said,—

"Ah, how [illegible] it is here!"

He looked at the trellis to which the ivy was clinging, the little trough in the yard where the poultry were fed, the laundry door to the left, and it seemed to him that an inexpressible charm hovered over all this homely scene, because it was so often lighted by the presence of his Gretchen.

"Ah!" thought he, "if Gretchen would only come out for ever so short a time! If I could only see her just now, I should be able to say to her 'Gretchen, I love thee!'"

He remained lost in these thoughts for about an hour, unable to make up his mind to go, when he heard a strange noise outside. Theodore raised his head to listen; it seemed like a smacking of lips after tasting the best of Johannisberg.

"What is that?" said the artist; and he glided cautiously into the court. There he heard the same noise again. Theodore looked this way and that, unable to discover the cause. At last, he drew aside the branches of a red-berried shrub, and saw, at the foot of the outside paling, the idiot Kasper Noss sitting on the [illegible], his legs stretched out, his shirt down about his shoulders, his old threadbare trousers held up on one side by a single [illegible], his old battered hat between his knees, and full of splendid grapes in huge bunches, which, no doubt, he had stolen hard by. The fellow looked as jolly as Bachus. His projecting forehead, his fat cheeks and even his round ruddy nose seemed brimming over with sensuous satisfaction. It was he who was smacking his lips so loudly. He was lifting up whole bunches of grapes, and hanging them down into his vast, open mouth. His throat was dilating with delight while he gave vent to his feelings by a chuckling and cooing somewhat like a pigeon. Some tall nettles were bending towards him in the shadow and thistles were standing up like sentinels at his feet.

"Oh you scoundrel!" cried Theodore to him, "so this is the way you spend your nights?"

The idiot turned his head carelessly, his eyes twinkled merrily, and letting go the grapes from his mouth, he replied: "What! is that you, Theodore? Come and taste my grapes."

"Where did you get them?"

Kasper indicated the place with his finger and said: "There, there are quantities down there."

"What! there? You stole them from Reebstock's field."

"Yes, Theodore," replied the other quite innocently.

"And what if I tell of you?"

"No fear of that."

"Why?"

"You would have to say what time of the night it was you saw me," and Kaspar [illegible] and laughed in a most extraordinary way, and the artist, quickly preparing to get over the paling again, muttered: "Ah, the idiot's right!"

But as he was making off Noss caught him by the coattails, crying out: "Stop thief! stop! I arrest you! You have just stolen Gretchen's heart."

Theodore turned suddenly pale.

"Let go."

"No, sit you down."

"Noss, I beseech of you."

"Eat some of my grapes."

"Listen, I shall call out."

"Give me some tobacco, Theodore, and I'll make Gretchen come out to you," said Noss in that strange wild persuasive voice common amongst idiots. "She loves you; she thinks of no one in the world but you. Hush," said he, raising his forefinger, "listen, she's dreaming in her little bedroom—she's saying, 'Theodore, my Theodore! Oh, how I love you.'"

Kaspar had let go Theodore's coat, but the latter had no longer any intention of running away; he listened eagerly to the promised Noss.

"Oh, my good Kaspar! are you sure of what you are saying?" [illegible] in a low tremulous voice.

"And why not?" replied Noss. "Aren't you the finest fellow in the village and the best also? Don't you give me tobacco when I ask for it and your old pipes as well? Oh, yes! she dreams of you every night. Come, sit down and I'll make her come out."

Theodore sat down as though fascinated. Then the idiot offered him a bunch of grapes. "Eat that," said he; "you have very often given me bread, so now it is my turn to make you a present."

And Theodore took a grape out of good nature; it was delicious red Mark drummer.

Noss laughed; then joining his hands before his mouth he uttered a guttural sound, the cry of the quail in the early morning. It was so natural that in the distant fields a quail was deceived by it, and imagining that he saw daylight in the middle of the night, he gave three calls.

"What on earth are you doing?"

"I'm putting [illegible]," said Noss [illegible]; "it's four o'clock [illegible]." Then he repeated the [illegible] several times at long intervals [illegible].

"[illegible]," said he to Theodore, "let me be; Gretchen will soon come out."

And leaning once more over the paling, Noss imitated the first crow of the cock, slow, solemn and thick as it is when the poor fellow is still hoarse with the night air. You could have fancied you saw the bird shaking his feathers and quivering on his perch. Five or six hens came down the ladder of the fowl-house, and looked at the moon through the roof.

"Why, you rogue!" said Theodore, "who ever taught you such tricks?"

Kaspar Noss grinned and answered softly: "Don't ask me any question, but only [illegible]."

The fowls becoming aware of their mistake wanted to go to roost again, but Kaspar, whose spirits were up, drove them back and made them cackle. Then, suddenly he broke into an imitation of the song of the rising lark welcoming the dawn. He threw so much feeling into this performance that Theodore's eyes filled, and he exclaimed in his heart:

"Oh Gretchen! Come to me, Gretchen, my love, my joy, my life! Gretchen, it's thy heart that's singing to thee! It is thy Theodore calling."

He had returned to the yard and leaning against the wall with his head bent he was lost in delicious dreams, whilst Noss was shaking forth his quivering notes.

Now Gretchen, somewhat surprised, had heard the quail whilst wrapped in slumber, and could scarcely believe it. She had heard the cock, and that also puzzled her; then the fowls, and her eyes opened. As there was no light shining through the shutter she went back to bed, but when [illegible] the lark—when the rich and [illegible] notes struck upon her heart she rose softly, [illegible],—

"Yes, it is morning [illegible]."

She began to dress, and went to open the shutter. Theodore had heard her rising. He was trembling, and felt inclined to seek safety in flight; but when the shutter opened all his fearfulness vanished. He leaned towards the window, and, in spite of a little cry from the girl seizing her hand he exclaimed,—

"Oh Gretchen, Gretchen! I love you!"

Scarcely had these words escaped him, when his knees trembled beneath him. Gretchen, fluttering like a dove startled in her nest, her cheeks all suffused with happy blushes, whispered softly,—

"Theodore, dear Theodore!"

She had no time to say more, for the shutter of Mr Reebstock, which was just above her window, burst open and a terrible oath—amongst the darkness—and was followed by these words:—

"Who is there?"

They were all filled with consternation. Theodore and Gretchen separated in great fear. Noss, with his arms aloft, fled as fast as his legs could carry him, imitating the cries of a wild duck pursued through the water reeds by a spaniel, his nasal voice re-echoing far in the remote distance. It was really most ludicrous, but Reebstock did not seem to think so; therefore the artist, clapping his hat on again, vaulted over the palisade, and set off at a rapid pace through the orchard, whilst Gretchen, trembling, quickly closed her window and replaced the shutter.

"Ah, scoundrel!" cried Reebstock, extending his arms, "you shall answer for this, I can tell you that!" and the great house-dog, roused by the scrimmage, began to bark and rattle his chain.

Theodore went on, running hither and thither until daylight, repeating, as if in a dream, "Gretchen, Gretchen, I love you!" Then he would add, "Theodore, dear Theodore!" and imagine that he was the happiest fellow on earth.

About five o'clock he went home, and when he had laid himself down on his little bed it occurred to him that old Reebstock had recognized him, and might forbid him his house. The thought depressed him very much.

Next morning his misery had increased.

"Could any one be so unhappy as I?" he exclaimed. "Oh, old Reebstock will be in an awful passion. Perhaps I shall never again see Gretchen. If I could only see her once more! But I shall never dare to go down the street again."

And, still dwelling on these distressing thoughts, he went down stairs and left the house, not caring whither he went, looking at the brewery in the distance, with its weathercock and sign board.

Nothing was changed; everything wore its ordinary aspect. The herdman was passing through the village playing on his pipe and followed by a large flock of goats and swine; the village lasses, with their pitchers, were trooping round the fountain, and Kasper Noss lay sleeping with his back to the sun on the bench before the town hall.

Attracted by this pleasant picture Theodore, with his portfolio under his arm, drew near. As he was passing the brewery, not daring to turn his head, he heard some one tapping loudly on the window pane. He stopped in a great fright.

"Is any one calling me?" he asked himself.

The windows of the tap room were opened, and already several customers were seated at the table. Among them were red faced old Alderman Weinland, with his large felt hat thrust on the back of his head, and his walking stick of vinewood resting between his knees; Zimmer, the tailor, in his gray gown and his green cap tied over his ears; and his nose smutched with snuff; also Spatz the barber, his [illegible] countenance surmounted by a little pyramid of hair as is the old French fashion, talking in a loud voice with his earthenware dish on the table by the bottle; and several more besides.

Old Herbel was putting the cans of curds in a row behind the stove, and long sunbeams bright with their myriads of dancing motes, fell along the table and beneath the benches.

Theodore entered in no easy frame of mind. Old Reebstock in his brown coat and steel buttons, was sitting by the clock case opposite the door. Gretchen was standing near the window with her eyes bent downwards. A lively conversation was going on. No one seemed to think that there was anything special on hand. But the moment when the artist appeared in the door way Reebstock raising his arms toward him cried:

"M. Theodore, do you love my daughter Gretchen?"

The young man turned quite pale. He opened his mouth but he could not get out a single word.

Then Reebstock looking him full in the face, repeated:

"Do you love my daughter Gretchen?"

All the spectators were struck dumb with amazement, each holding his glass in his hand, sat as if transfixed gazing by turns at Theodore, Gretchen and the landlord.

At last, Theodore in a voice choked with emotion, said:—

"Oh! yes! how I love her."

He cast such an imploring look at Gretchen, that the girl of her own accord rushed across the room to him, and throwing herself into his arms burst into tears. Then the old brewer gave a loud laugh.

"Ha! ha! ha! Didn't I know that they were in love with each other," said he. "You can't take me in quite so easily."

And all present, seeing him so well satisfied, exclaimed, "Ha! ha! Old Reebstock [illegible] he knew all about it."

"Well," continued the brewer, "[illegible] love her so much take her, marry her, but you must stay and live with me and [illegible]."

Then sitting down he added gravely: "It [illegible] decided now; you shall be married [illegible] fortnight."

Which in fact happened.

Well, Reebstock had grandsons and granddaughters whom he used to [illegible]. Afterwards when he was [illegible] to his son-in-law and daughter: "My children, you must remember one thing—if we are happy we must thank Heaven for it. I heard the cock crowing before sunrise and as I was looking out of my window I saw Gretchen unfastening her shutter. Then I felt inclined to be very angry, but Providence made me think better of it. Marry them first, [illegible] afterwards."

Theodore [illegible] admired the wisdom of the old man and thanked the Lord who governs all things here below so well.—M. M. Erckmann Chatrian.

FINANCE AND COMMERCE.

FRIDAY EVENING September [illegible] 1873

Gold in New York to-day 11[illegible].

Portland Legal Tender rates [illegible]; buying 80½; selling [illegible].

Gold bars [illegible].

Exchange on San Francisco [illegible] per cent.

Wheat in Liverpool—Average California [illegible] 11s 6d; club 1s [illegible].

Our [illegible] has been [illegible] by the [illegible] While the aggregate of purchases have been [illegible] the [illegible] channel [illegible] less seriously [illegible] general business [illegible]. The movement of the wheat crop may now be said to have begun in earnest and at the rate at which receipts have [illegible] this market during the past few days the bulk of the crop will not long be in first hands. The exporters at this point are [illegible] paying all that the markets of demand will bear under present rates [illegible] and it is [illegible] that Oregon farmers with [illegible] exception will [illegible] their way at when they can get a fairly remunerative price for it. With an active market for our [illegible] home products our financial condition is [illegible], and our people will be [illegible] satisfied with their present situation and future prospects.

Home Produce Market.

WHEAT—The aggregate of receipts at this port during the week so far has been very large, and is being daily increased. The demand is brisk and competition among exporters who have chartered vessels in port or to arrive has brought prices up to a point which many producers are willing to sell. We hear of some transactions in the interior on the basis of $1 80 ⅌ cental delivered here in sacks.

FLOUR—The mills in some parts of our State which were closed are now running on full time grinding the new Wheat crop, and under the hardening tendency of prices receipts have increased. Some shipments are made both for San Francisco and ports to the north. Our market is firm at $5 50 ⅌ bbl for extra of standard brands outside at 1 country brands $5; superfine $4@4 25. The local trade is active.

OATS—We find that buyers here are paying less attention to this cereal than would naturally be expected at this season. It is thought that the market is shaky and the demand is likely to be dull until receipts of the new crop shall have been sufficient to clearly establish prices. Our market is quotable at 40 cents per bushel. This means for fair lots of white, black being worth [illegible] cents less.

BARLEY—Reports from the interior of the State confirm previous accounts of a large yield and the crop is being saved in good condition, the surplus will be much larger than ever before. The present condition of the market is [illegible] to holders as shipments both from California and Oregon will probably be largely increased during the next year over those of the past. We quote our market at $1 40 per cental.

FEED—A tendency to more firmness is noted, induced by the advance in wheat. We are furnished quotations for chopped middlings etc at $23 ⅌ ton, shorts $20@21 and bran $18@20 including sacks in all cases.

HAY—No considerable activity is noticed in the market, though lots arriving are freely taken at $12@13 per ton for baled timothy and $10@11 for loose. The supply during the week has been limited.

POTATOES—An abundant supply of excellent varieties is in our market and sale is dull for all but the best, which we quote at 40 cents per bushel.

APPLES—The orchards adjacent to the city are supplying the home demand and some shipments are being made. We quote fair to choice at 50@60c per box.

BACON—We quote choice lots of shoulders firm at 8½@9½c, sides 10@12c and hams 14c. The demand is quite fair and the fall trade in this staple is likely to be quite active.

LARD—With a good demand we note firm rates for choice lots at our last quotations.

BUTTER—The receipts of the past few days have been light and best quality is in fair demand at 25@28c per pound. Common lots range at [illegible].

EGGS—The supply is full and prices weak at 25c per dozen for fresh receipts.

CHICKENS—We quote spring chickens $2 25@2 75 per doz, grown in choice lots $4.

BEEF CATTLE—Quotable at 4@4½c ⅌ lb on foot.

SHEEP—A fair demand at $2@3 per head for good mutton sheep.

DRESSED HOGS—The trade is dull; butchers and packers paying 6@7c ⅌ lb.

HIDES—Market active at 6@7 cents ⅌ lb for green, 7@8 cents for green salted and 15 cents for dry in sound lots.

WOOL—By reference to a dispatch seen elsewhere in this column the Eastern wool market is improving. Ours has been quiet for some days but manufacturers are freely taking all choice lots offering at 22@24 cents per pound.

SMALL POX.

DOCTOR BORZEAU'S SMALL POX REMEDY. SAMUEL CORWIN Proprietor can be procured at all the Drug Stores in this city at the present time. As this medicine is proving an inestimable boon to those afflicted with that disease no person should neglect the present opportunity of providing themselves with this valuable antidote.

Price ONE DOLLAR per bottle.

Portland Oregon Aug 22 1873

MR SAMUEL CORWIN—Sir: In justice to yourself and for the benefit of those who may be afflicted with the small pox I am induced to give publicity to the following facts. About the 28th of July 1873 I became very unwell having severe pain in my head, back and limbs which continued to increase in severity for three or four days; a very high fever set in and I began to break out on my face, neck and body with what proved to be small pox. I procured of Dr Freeland of the Central Drug store a bottle of your small pox remedy. Notwithstanding the severity of the attack I administered the medicine myself not in accordance with accompanying directions but in about double doses. In three days all pain and fever disappeared. My recovery was extremely rapid notwithstanding frequent exposures by moving about from place to place while in a high fever which is generally considered fatal in that disease, and it is my firm conviction that under the ordinary treatment for that disease I would not be living to-day. I took of the medicine about two and a half bottles more, perhaps than was necessary not wishing to discontinue until a thorough cure was effected.

PETER BURK

I know of my own knowledge that the foregoing statement is true in every particular.
